

It was the worst day I have ever had in my whole life. I had never been trapped in a place in darkness for 30 hours in my life before this horrible thing happened.

At about 2:00 p.m. on 24th September, I stepped into Empire Commercial Centre because I had a job interview. When I took the elevator to 27th floor, the world turned dark, the elevator failed to function properly.

There were two other ladies with me. I thought they were the staff of the company in this building. After the lift stopped, what I could hear was frequent breathing as they breathed very fast. Then, there was the burst of scream, that scream was at the highest level (the sharpest scream I had ever heard). I couldn't bare the scream at all. For me, it was just an elevator that stopped dead in its shaft! What I needed to do was to press the emergency button. When I pressed the button, I just realized that we were in a completely closed space – the button was out of order too.

There was no doubt that trapping in an elevator was a thing that was out of luck. But bad luck never comes alone. As I couldn't bare the scream, I shouted at the two ladies impatiently. When the two ladies started to calm down finally, we started to talk. Although the emergency light in this lift was weak, I saw their faces turned angry. What I didn't know was they were the managers of the Wai Shun Trading Company! That's the company I was going to have the job interview. They were also the interviewers! What a coincidence! When they knew I was the interviewee, I was disqualified immediately. Well, this lift trapping experience was a nightmare that I've ever had.

After another 12 hours, there was some light coming from the roof. There was a second that I thought that came from the god. There were full of police officers, firefighters and rescue units outside the lift. Though I was safe at the end, it was totally a nightmare. I lost a job interview that I longed for. As the saying goes, attitude determines what we have in life.
